Who can enter the Awards?

If you advise, invest or provide services into healthcare and social care then there is a category for you. Details of which specific types of organisation and individuals are eligible to enter each of the categories are set out in the category descriptions.

What is the eligibility period?

Entries for the LaingBuisson Awards must relate to projects, products, initiatives or activities carried out in the last 12 months. You can refer to prior periods, if it helps the judges to understand the activity in context, but entries will not be judged on past glories.

What is the deadline to enter the Awards?

The closing date for entries is 24th June 2022.

Is there a fee to enter the Awards?

There is no fee for entering the Awards. To book a table or individual ticket to attend the Awards Ceremony on November 17th, you will be able to book once tickets go on sale.

What information is required for the submission?

The information required varies across categories. To view questions for a specific category, select the 'enter now' button on the Awards website. You will be taken to the entry site where you can register as an entrant and then proceed to the submission page. On selecting a category on the submission form, the relevant questions for that category will be displayed. You can save an entry in draft mode and return at any time to make amendments before submitting your final entry.

How many categories can an organisation enter?

There is no limit to the number of categories you can enter. A separate form is required for each entry.

How will the LaingBuisson Awards be judged?

A panel of expert judges, chosen for their experience in the industry, will study all the entries submitted and rate each submission independently on a predetermined set of criteria. Their combined ratings will decide the award winner. In the case of a tie, the chairman of the judges will have a casting vote to decide the winner. Judges are grouped according to expertise. Some judging groups may judge more than one category, because their expertise is broad enough, or because the category criteria is similar.

The judges' decisions will be arrived at independently and will be final. No correspondence will be entered into concerning the judges' decisions.

What makes a good entry?

Examples, examples, examples. The judges like to see examples of outstanding practice, examples of comparative data, examples of return on investment. A mixture of differentiation, innovation and achievements should be shown in your entry nomination.

Are the submissions confidential?

Yes, all entries are treated as confidential by the judging panel and LaingBuisson.

How many finalists are there per category?

The number of finalists varies from one category to another and ranges from around 4 to 12 entrants.

When will the finalists be announced?
